THE BATTLE OF SHILOH-THE SECOND DAY'S IANS-KENTUCK ON HER SHINING SHIELD-THE LOUISVILLE LEGION AND ROUSSEAU'S BRIGADE IN THE VANGUARD. BATTLE-FIELD OF SHILOH, April 16, 1862.

In my last I gave you a partial account of the On the 6th, when night brought relief to our ments were advanced into line and others re-

The night grew suddenly very dark when the regiments which for their gallant and sacrificing sun went down and about nine o'clock the rain | compliance with their Generals' orders deserved began to pour down in torrents; yet it disturbed great credit. The darkness had no scorer began to disperse, than the crack of Nelson's musketry was heard on the left wing, louder and more rapid it grew as the Commander of the English steamer Rinaldo, the moments passed away, until, a little after sunrise, it was evidentithat he had successfully engaged the enemy, and as the fire continued it began to grow a little more distant, which was navy, came down to visit the Rinaldo, expecting, sufficient proof that the rebels were giving way.

Early in the morning Gen. T. L. Crittenden, with an apparent restiveness, made his appearance, and after a lapse of a few moments applied to Gen. Grant for orders to move his men forward | English Government. The Day Book hopes that into action. "Certainly," replied Grant, "you nothing more will be said with regard to the will proceed with your division to left wing and friendship of England, but that her citizens will form on the right of Gen. Nelson." As quick as be hereafter regarded and treated as enemies a flash the gallant Crittenden moved off and of the South. marched his division to support Gen. Nelson, and in a very short time from the extent and rapidity of the fire, it was clear that Crittenden had become engaged. Meanwhile Gen. McCock's division had began to advance; forming on the right of Gen. Crittenden.

The whole line of our army now began an advance on the enemy. Gen. McClernand, who its account, being in excess of what was called for was to the left of Gen. Lew. Wallace, his force by the whole capital stock. An examination was having come up the night previous and formed entered into in the absence of the Secretary, and on McClernand's right, began to advance obliquely to the left, shelling the woods as he went with personal application to him, when he acknowlby to the left, shelling the woods as he went with McAllister's howitzers, and the right front line of the encampment was gained with but small loss. Gen. Rousseau rode con- following letter in the Cincinnati Commercial: tinually among his men in the thickest of the tinually among his men in the thickest of the fight, and led them on to the crowning victory. Col. Buckley displayed great gallantry when the Legion was charging the enemy, as well as the rest of the officers of the Legion, among the bravest of whom I may mention Capt. Mangen, who kept continually in advance of his men as they pressed forward in the face of a desperate resistance, while cannon balls and mucketry were falling like hailstones around. The regulars, under the guidance of the heroic Maj. King, behaved most gallantly. but there was not on that haved most gallantly, but there was not on that dreadful field another force whose bravery and valor could cope with our own noble Legion, nor any officer to excel the gallant conduct and noble example of our valient Rousseau. Sherman's Division, whose men had previously faltered, stimulated by the noble example of the Kentuckians and Gens. McClernand and Wallace's Divisions, advanced nobly to the support of Rousseau, who had charged the enemy's artillary, and after a severe conflict drove them from their position, recapturing a battery taken by the enemy on the previous day.

Gen. Hurlbu's 4th Division came up just in time to participate in this magnificent charge, and, as on the previous day, acted nobly. Capt, J. C. Long, Atkins and Lieut. Cook, aids to Gen Hurlbut, behaved nobly throughout the contest Gen. Sherman's column advanced abreast with Rousseau's brigade. McAllister's battery, under the personal direction of Gen. Sherman, succeeded in silencing the enemy's guns at Shilob, and those on the left of McCook's Division. The enemy was now beginning to give way rapidly-about four o'clock-pressed hardly by Rousseau, with Sherman, Hurlbut, and McClernand. All the ground lost on Sunday was soon regained, and the enemy in full retreat to Corinth.

During this terrible conflict on the right and centre, the combined forces of Buell were doing terrible destruction to the rebels on our left. Nelson, Crittenden, and McCook's left had been their lines during the entire day, regardless of the perpetual storm of musketry and artillery, | 6 which was producing destruction on all sides of Hunter, Southern department.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1862.

Will sensitive daily scribes be lucid enough to understand, for their private ease and delectation, that the certain and speedy way to abolish abolition is to abolish slavery? If they will not understand, then such pig-headed people should be surrendered to the lash of the satirist and the jibes of the humorist—for good, wholesome logic would be thrown away upon them.

New York Tribune. This is a fair specimen of the Tribune's sense and decency.

"The certain and speedy way to abolish abolition," says the Tribune, "is to abolish slavery." The Tribune asserts this in all seriousness. By an exact parity of reason, the certain and speedy way to abolish rebellion is to abolish government; the certain and speedy way to abolish stealing is to abolish property; the certain and speedy way to abolish murder is to abolish human life; and, in general, the certain and speedy way to abolish a wrong is to abolish the right on which the wrong is inflicted. This is the Tribune's sense. Such is the Tribune's "good, wholesome logic." And if there are persons not "lucid enough to understand" this "logic," and upon whom it would be accordingly "thrown away," the Tribune declares that "such pig-headed people should be surrendered to the lash of the satirist and the jibes of the humorist." This is the Tribune's decency.

Never certainly since the world began has there been so deserving or so promising a subject for "the lash of the satirist and the jibes of the humorist" as the inflated and shallow journal that seeks to recommend a bad cause by arguments and taunts like these. Unquestionably the New York Tribune for the last month or so at least has in handling grave topics displayed sillier and more despicable sophistry than any other journal of any description that was ever published in this country. Compared with the Tribune's sophistication the wildest badinage of the Herald is philosophical discourse, while, in comparison with the vulgar malignity of the Tribune, the Herald's ribaldry is nobility itself. In temper, in argument, and in purpose, the Tribune is thoroughly contemptible. It is laboring for a disloyal end with the spirit of a knave and the judgment of a fool.

It is stated that the 71st regiment Ohio the 77th disbanded and sent home, for cowardice at the battle near Pittsburg Landing regiments were fresh ones, and, with some raw securely guarded by the usual precautions of pickets and outposts. It has been asserted and not denied that some of them were totally without ammunition and that others had never been on a regimental parade since their organization. What could have been expected from them, when the shameful surprise on the morning of the 6th inst. was permitted? Veterans could not have withstood the vigorous ssault of Johnston and Beauregard had antry of another contemporary, who says Beauthey been placed in a similar fatal position. It is a very easy matter for army correspondents who write thrilling narratives of battles which they never witnessed, or for Editors hundreds of miles away from the scene of conflict, to charge cowardice upon these sacrificed men, but every drop of their blood cries aloud for a strict and searching inquiry into the causes of the disaster. When that is instituted, we think it more probable that the verdict will strip epaulets from some unworthy shoulders, and restore the colors of the disgraced and disbanded Ohio regiments. The criminal neglect of that fatal morning can never be expiated, but the errors may be; the faults of commanders who sacrificed so many loyal lives cannot be overlooked, but let the Ohio regiments have a chance to redeem their tarnished honor. A breath has passed over the fair mirror of their State's chivalry, but it may pass away and from its bright surface may be reflected a long panorama of noble, gallant, and historic deeds.

We of Kentucky will never join in any aspersions upon the Ohio volunteers who faltered at Pittsburg Landing. The routed regiments at Bull Run, then undisciplined, have since proved the best soldiers of our army, won imperishable laurels, and been pronounced the finest soldiers in the world. Ohio does not breed poltroons or cowards. She has given to this war for the Union, McClellan, Buell, Mc-Dowell, Rosccrans, W. T. Sherman, Mitchell, Garfield, Woods, Schenck, the McCooks, Steadman, Ammen, Fysse, Van Derveer, Harris, Dickey, DcCourcy, Connell, Stanley, Beatty, Whittlesey, Norton, Walker, Sill, Bradley, Cranor, Gibson, Matthews, Appler, Forsythe, Hasker, and scores of others, many of whose noble regiments have been the saviors of Kentucky from the devastation of the Confederate armies. The brave men who boast the maternity of Ohio, or who are her sons by adoption, stood shoulder to shoulder with Kentuckians in the deadly conflict and recognized the full effect of our State motto "United we stand, divided we fall." All honor to them, and all honor too to the luckless 71st and 77th. The latter may be censured by those to whom their defeat is certainly attributable, but they evinced the right spirit when they volunteered under Col. Mason, at Troy, and Col. Hildebrand, at Marietta. Give them a fair chance and a short period of discipline and we will the country can produce. Shame on the cra- | nex us? vens who would seek to degrade them under the circumstances of their unpreparedness at Pittsburg Landing and their consequent panic. Retribution, speedy and deserved, upon those whose criminal carelessness brought upon them the horrors and the carnage of the 6th

The rebel organs denounce President Lincoln for suggesting that the U.S. Government, if any State wishes to get rid of its slaves, shall purchase them. And yet all those organs, we have no doubt, approve the course of the rebel commissioners in London, who are said in the English papers to have proposed, that, if Great Britain would acknowledge the independence of the Southern Confederacy, all children born of slave parents after the recognition should be free.

harleston Mercury:

He, however, objected to a high salary at this time. Congress will have devolved upon it a great mission. It may be, that in the progress of this great revolution, they may be compelled to save the country at all hazard, and by the most starling measures, and it would be necessary in order to do that, that they should have the confidence of the people, and what would give that more fully than disinterestedness in regard to money matters? He feared, if they increased their salaries, that they would diminish that influence which it would be necessary for them to have in order to work out this great mission.

Other signs are not wantly upon it a cause which it has borne forward, but yet a year whose burdens and whose honors we can never be too proud that we were permitted to share. Far better one such year 'than a cycle of Kathay!'

"This year closes brightly around us. Victory is ours; defeat is the portion of our enemies. We are confident in ourselves; we are conquering the approval of those who bear us

Epitsph discovered on an o'd tombstone in the churchyard at Weisnichtwe: Here lies Toutant de Beauregard, Who for the truth had no regard; When seized by Satan, he will cry, "I've caught old Satan! Victory!"

This is good; but we like as well the pleasregard's claim of victory at Shiloh rese that of John Phonaix in his famous tussle in the editorial sanctum at San Francisco. "I held the enemy down," said the irresistible Phenix, "with my nose, which I had inserted between his teeth for that purpose."

It is said that Albert Pike gives as reason for going into the war, that he is very unhappy and wishes to die. But certainly he isn't smart in desiring to jump out of the frying-pan of this world into the fire of the next. Yet if he has such an anxiety to die, why doesn't he die at once and be done with itdie by rope or ratsbane, pistol or pocket knife -instead of letting himself be prompted by his blue devils to muster red devils to whoop and murder and scalp in honor of his exit to the region of black devils!

News from Europe is that the victory at Fort Donelson instantly produced in England a considerable rise in American stocks, This is an important fact, considering that we are borrowers in the market. It is none the less important in showing that solid conviction abroad connects our material prosperity with the maintenance of the Union. Moneyholders know their interests, and they know death of our progress. In the fall of Fort Donelson they discern the final extinction of CITY AUDITOR'S REPORT. -The annual report of receipts and expenditures of Louisville for the fiscal year anding March 10, 1862, as presented to the General Council by H. Stucky, City Auditor, has been published in pamphlet form. The receipts for the year were $673,342 93, and the expenditures $558,248 14. There were warrants outstanding at the time of the report to the amount of $22,739 84, and cash in hand $62,-344 95. The receipts on account of the Sinking Fund were $83,108 24, which, with a balance to credit of the account at the commencement of the year, made an aggregate sum of $105,755 70, while the payments for the year were $59,953 97, leaving cash in hand $23,205 29. The accruing city revenue for the year was $221,938 75. There is $11,680 53 balance in the hands of the L. & N. R. R. Co., for the use of the Memphis Branch. There were 62 bonds for use of Memphis Branch and 24 to House of Refuge, in all $80,000 redeemed and cancelled during the year, and the amount of bonds still unredeemed is $3,461,000. The assets of the city in real estate, market-houses, fire department property, stock, bonds, &c., are valued at $5,271,800 35, the liabilities $3,546,235 82, leaving $1,725,505 53 surplus assets. Mr. Stucky' report is clear, satisfactory, and business-like, and we are happy to see that he has relieved the municipal accounts from the entanglement caused by the inattention of John D. Pope. We have never seen the details of the credits and debts of a large account more compactly stated, or more intelligible to persons not thoroughly versed in bookkeepipg.

ARREST OF ALLEGED TRAITORS .- Jno. Millett, pretty well known as a secessionist, and a steamboat engineer named Ferguson, have been arrest ed for treason by a United States officer, at Portland. The New Albany Ledger says Millett's complicity with the rebels has long been gener ally known, but an intercepted letter to the South ern rebels has fixed his guilt beyond a peradventure. There are other recessionists at Portland beside the two above named, who should be sen to Fort Warren

PHYSICIAN WESTERN DISTRICT -Dr. Thomas J. Griffiths, as already announced, was elected physician to the Western District by the General Council on Monday evening. The charter of the city makes it obligatory upon him not only to attend daily at the almshouse, but to prescribe for the poor free of charge. He may be found at his office, on Jefferson street, between Ninth and Tenth, between the hours of two and three o'clock each day, ready to prescribe for the indigent of the district.

Mr. T. H. Wickham, a private in the Fortysixth Indiana Rogiment, who feels that he is indebted to kind friends in this city and New Albany for the preservation of his life, wishes us to return his thanks to Dr. Weeds, of Hospital No. 3, and

The world has is rapidly recovering, and that he will scon be able to take the field. Surgeon Cloak, who has been much worn down in the discharge of his ardnous duties, is also at Versailles, and will soon be sufficiently recruited to rejoin his regiment.

PRISON EXPERIENCE. - By invitation of the General Council, Col. Wm. E. Woodruff will deliver a lecture at the Masonic Temple this evening upon his experience in Richmond and else where South as prisoner of war. A general in vitation is extended to our citizens to be present. The gallant Colonel will make a plain statemen of the facts on the (ccasion, which which will be found peculiarly interesting.

Mrs. M. Preston Pope, in behalf of the Ladies' Soldiers' Relief Society of the Sixth Ward, returns sincere thanks to Mrs. B. Rouse of Cleveland, Ohio, for three boxes of hospital delicacies and two half barrels dried fruit; also to Mrs. Bland Ballard, of Jefferson county, for one box of clothing for the wounded; and to Mrs. Elvira Hardin, of Nolin, for two boxes of edibles and clothing.

Among the wounded who arrived from Pittsburg Landing yesterday was Msj. Ben. P. Runkle, of the Fourteenth Ohio infantry, a resident of Urbana, Ohio. He is accompanied by his estimable wife and a nurse. Major Runkle was seriously wounded in the face, a ball having penetrated his cheek and carried away a portion of his tongue. He is at the Louisville Hotel.

THE GOVERNORS OF KENTUCKY .- When will the leisure of our good friend Colonel Orlando Brown, of the Frankfort Commonwealth, enable him to resume his delightful sketches of the men who have been incumbents of the Executive chair of Kentucky? All the dicers of this regiment conducted themselves with the courage and dignity of Kentucky soldiers. And I will, in this connection, say to the fair ladies of Lexington, that the beautiful flig they presented to us was in the hottest part of the most desperately contested conflict of modern times. The 2d Kentucky, Colonel S dgwick, charged a portion of the celebrated Washington Artillery, supported by two regiments of Texans. This was the most dreadful conflict of the day, and nobly was it performed. Through an undergrowth where the hardest part of this conflict took place, I afterwards counted over two bundred of the enemy dead on the field. Col. After consultation, the committee reported the following resolutions, which were nanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the late battle of Shiloh, fought on the 6th and 7th days of April, 1852, our friend and neighbor, Richard Thornton, fell whilst gallantly bearing the time honored flag of the Union in the thickest of the fight; therefore—

Resolved, That we, his neighbors, who have known Richard Thorton from his howhood, hereby known Richard Thorton from his boyhood, hereby express our admiration for his gallantry, regrefor his death, although on a field of glory, at sympathy for his surviving friends and family. Resolved. That we will cherish the memory his many noble qualities, and never forget that he honorably and gallantly closed a life which was ever at the service of his country and of honor.
